QUOTES FROM HONOURED GUESTS:

In any given year, 20 percent of Canadians experience a mental health or addiction problem. Unfortunately, roughly half of these people will never seek help because of the stigma that surrounds mental illness and of the people who do seek help only half of them will find a viable solution. More needs to be done to educate on this topic and who better to do this then our teachers. As Canadians we benefit from spending a good portion of our lives with teachers and the Educators Conference is an excellent vehicle to provide these people with the tools they need to equip the next generation with the knowledge that will eventually stamp out stigma and improve the lives of Canadians living with mental illness.

-Daniel McCarthy, Senior Director, Lundbeck Canada

The Mood Disorders Society of Canada is committed to providing the very best experts in the field of Mental Health for Youth so that our Educators can continue to make a difference in the classroom and schools

-Dave Gallson, National Executive Director
